On May 12, we had the pleasure of having Blake Holton as our speaker. He brought along his canoe, a marvel of Norwegian technology.

After having paddled most of the rivers and lakes in Algonquin Park, Blake and his friend Jay Sherwin decided they wanted to attempt something wilder where they would have to depend solely on their wits and experience. Enter the Thlewiaza River - a river known by very few. While doing research on the subject, they found that even bush planes don't fly there. That's about as wild as it gets!

Two others joined them on this adventure. They were met by an Inuit chap from Nunavut at Arviat, the closest point to their ultimate destination. It was here that they discovered that Farley Mowat had paddled the Thlewiaza. What's more, the chap gave them a set of Farley's hand-drawn charts to use if they ever needed them. When their GPS broke down, the charts came in very handy indeed.

They found a man with a plane but no pilot to fly them to their destination. Instead, they ended up with an aluminum outboard packed to the gills with their gear. Little did they know what was to come...

Way past the tree line and 18 hours later, they arrived at their starting point...or so they thought. The mosquitoes and black flies were rife which meant they had to wear mosquito suits but the hungry flies ended up inside their garments! They then found they had to portage over huge rocks and shoot rapids to get to the Thlewiaza River. Upon arrival, they were awed by the size of this immense river. Unbeknownst to his mates, Jay had brought a bottle of single malt, some Yukon Jack and Cuban cigars! They feasted, dodged grizzly bears and encountered bad weather during their expedition on this great lake. At the end of their journey, Blake used his satellite phone to find someone to pick them up in a bush plane for the return trip to Churchill. It was quite a shock to get back to civilization after 2 and 1/2 weeks in that faraway place. They were grateful for Farley's notes which were always correct, proving he had indeed paddled No Man's Lake.

Spring Fling - 2011

On May 18 at the Evinrude Centre in Peterborough was held the annual Spring Fling 2011. Some 580 Probus members from various clubs in southeastern Ontario took part in the festivities.

The head table members were piped in much to the appreciation of the crowd. After the welcome and presentations were done, guest speaker James Raffan took the stage. He is one of Canada's foremost authorities on the North, the wilderness and the canoeing tradition. He is also the curator of the Canadian Canoe Museum in Peterborough. He regaled us with his delightful sense of humour and many stories of his experiences searching out canoes for the museum all over the world.

Raffan is a fellow and former governor of the Royal Canadian Geographical Society, and has served as chair of the Arctic Institute of North America. He is also a recipient of the Queen's Golden Jubilee Medal, and is the author of several books.

Following some prize-giving, a delicious lunch and great desserts, we were entertained in the truest sense of the word by members of the Leahy Family.

The 4 Leahy children (ages 4 to 9) and their parents

When is the last time you saw a step dancing, fiddle-playing 4 year old?? The four children played and danced like pros! Mother on the keyboard and Dad on the fiddle gave a memorable performance which was loudly appreciated by everyone.

Unfortunately, our club didn't win anything this year...none of the grand prizes, not even a 50/50!

Hobby Day Hobby Day

On Thursday, May 26 we held our 3rd Hobby Day. Thanks to organizers Steve Snell and Willy Jakobi, we had an interesting and eclectic mix of hobbies such as Felicity King's beautiful paintings – both watercolours and oils; Ron Smith gave us great tips on how to “Dig up our Roots” with his presentation on Genealogy. Who knew member Ron was distantly related to George Washington??

Dave Broughton is Past-President of the Historical Lighting Society of Canada. His presentation on ‘Ephemeras’ (meaning: things that exist or are used or enjoyed for only a short time.) was both unexpected and fascinating. Who would have thought oil lamps could reveal so much of life in Victorian times.

Last but certainly not least was Yvonne O’Neill, our constant knitter! Yvonne’s presentation was so interesting and surprising when you think of all that the fleece of a sheep can be mixed with to become a garment! (With a lot of hard work and time in between shearing and the end results!) Some of the more esoteric blends included wool & milk, wool & soy, wool & musk ox ($97 per 100gms!) and many, many more. Many members felt the presentations were too short at 12 minutes each.
